

Islamic marriage - a sacred, social, revocable contract between the bride and groom.

Islamic Marriage (nikah) is a solemn and sacred social contract between bride and groom. This contract is a strong covenant as expressed in Quran (4:21). The Islamic Marriage contract is not a sacrament. It is revocable. Both parties mutually agree and enter into this contract. Both bride and groom have the liberty to define various terms and conditions of their liking and make them a part of this contract. So what is more important in Islamic Marriage? It is the spirit of marriage, the intention which underlies it, the treasures which it contains hidden within it but which must be brought out and realized by the married couple themselves. The Quran provides the signposts for Islamic Marriage and its potential. It says: "It is He who created you from a single soul, And made its mate of like nature in order that you might dwell with her in love...."(7:189) 'Dating' as it is currently practiced in much of the world does not exist among Muslims - where a young man and woman are in a one-on-one intimate relationship, spending time together alone, getting to know each other in a very deep way before deciding on a traditional Islamic Marriage. Moreover, in Islam pre-marital relationships of any kind between members of the opposite sex is forbidden.
