

Do Live Roulette Strategies Work

Roulette strategy? They are a dime a dozen, but there are only a few live roulette strategies that really work. While live roulette is a game of chance and it is impossible to continually predict where the ball will land there are a few steps you can take to help put the odds of winning in your favor. In a game of chance using a roulette strategy is no guarantee you will win, but a well devised roulette strategy can decrease your losses, and then you will have a strategy that might give you an opportunity to become a winner. Picking the right wheel is the first live roulette strategy you should consider, a European wheel only has a single green pocket numbered zero while the American wheel has two giving the casino an extra advantage and you a lesser one. For this reason it's a good idea to always play on a European wheel. In order for roulette strategies to work they need to apply a few key points, one is that you need to be able to repeat it. Money management also plays a part in a roulette strategy, because roulette has a higher "house advantage" than other games such as blackjack. Some players use what is known as a "negative-progression strategy" or "doubling strategy" they will double up their betting amount every time they dont win. This is a dangerous strategy to play as it can definitely increase your overall losses, and a single win might only get you back to where you started from. The most common roulette strategy is also the oldest known as the "Martingale system", this involves both money management and doubling up. For a beginner, one guaranteed winning roulette strategy is to just play for fun. You can play roulette for fun at many gaming sites around the internet. When playing for fun you are playing using pretend money, this way you can see how the different kinds of bets will work and which style of the live roulette wheel you like best, you will also learn which combination of bets will pay off the best and which ones hurt your betting balance the least when you do lose. Many people spend hours searching the internet for free live roulette strategies and some of them are thought to be a good way to victory, but still, you can't know whether they are worth implementing until you try them out and either win big or loose big.
